

Broadcast radio has for many years narrowed the focus of its content in most major market segments to the detriment of listeners who appreciate a varied menu of programing; this includes public radio as well. Satellite radio reinstates choice in radio programing. It should be allowed to compete "straight up" with convential radio broadcasting.